

Change Ahead: Sustainable Governance in the BRICS

By [Author's Name]

The BRICS countries (Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa) are home to over 40% of the world's population and account for a significant share of global economic output. As these countries continue to grow and develop, they face a number of challenges, including climate change, economic inequality, and social unrest. Sustainable governance is essential for addressing these challenges and ensuring that the BRICS countries achieve sustainable development.
