Here is a sample poem from the book:

"The Great American Road" by Carl Sandburg

And yet I know it is not the greatest road, Not the most beautiful or the most important, Not the one that leads to the most desirable haven, But it is a road, and it is mine.

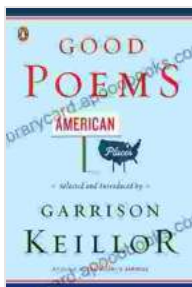

I have traveled it many times, In all kinds of weather, And I have always found it to be a good road.

It is a road that is full of surprises, And it is a road that is always changing. But it is a road that is always there, And it is a road that I will always love.
